Royal Collection Trust launches a pink gin infused with raspberries grown at Windsor Castle

Royal Collection Trust, a department of the Royal Household, has today launched a pink gin, infused with raspberries grown at Windsor Castle and mixed with a blend of sweet and fragrant botanicals.

Royal Windsor Pink Gin is spiced with piquant pink peppercorns and warming cassia bark, while orange peel and rose petal add a subtle sweetness. Hand-picked raspberries from across the Royal Estate in Windsor are then infused into the spirit, lending the gin a fruity finish and vibrant pink hue.

The gin pairs beautifully with ginger beer for a fiery twist on the classic Gin and Tonic. Garnished with fresh raspberries and orange peel, this rosy tippie will make the perfect accompaniment to Coronation celebrations in May.

All profits from sales of the gin go to The Royal Collection Trust, a registered charity, and help fund the care and conservation of the Royal Collection, and access to the Collection through exhibitions, publications, loans and educational programmes.

Royal Windsor Pink Gin, 38% abv can be purchased online from Friday, 17 February from www.rct.uk/shop at £38.00 for a 70cl bottle and is available from Royal Collection Trust shops in London, Windsor and Edinburgh.

Notes to Editors

Royal Collection Trust, a department of the Royal Household, is responsible for the care of the Royal Collection and manages the public opening of the official residences of The King. Income generated from admissions and from associated commercial activities contributes directly to The Royal Collection Trust, a registered charity. The aims of The Trust are the care and conservation of the Royal Collection, and the promotion of access and enjoyment through exhibitions, publications, loans and educational programmes.

The Royal Collection is among the largest and most important art collections in the world, and one of the last great European royal collections to remain intact. It comprises almost all aspects of the fine and decorative arts, and is spread among some 15 royal residences and former residences across the UK, most of which are regularly open to the public. The Royal Collection is held in trust by the Sovereign for his successors and the nation, and is not owned by The King as a private individual.
